She denied that Gardner had ever suggested to her that she make an affidavit against Grant, and declared that Gardner's story that Capt. Devery knocked that bundle of $100 in marked bills out of her hands at the time of Gardner's arrest was a ile.

She also denied Gardner's story in every other particular.

Stephen McDonough, a saloon-keeper at 1331 Third avenue, corner of Seventy-sixth street, came next to the stand on cused.

He began by telling the jury that any apparent asperity between him and the Recorder during the trial was foreign to the matter in hand, and was not brought into the trial; that he and the Recorder in short, had always esteemed each other most highly in the past, and, so far as he was concerned, would continue to do so in the future.

Among the sayings of Mr. Goff were these:

"I have felt, with my conferers in this case, that we had the hardest kind of a task to perform. We have felt that it was not alone Gardner at trial, but the Society which he represents.

"There was and is a determination on the part of the Police Department to destroy the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst.

Wise, Just and Houset.

Reticence, or a sudden ignorance of the matter, characterized a majority of Brooklyn's officials when asked to ex-press an opinion this morning of Gov. Flower's veto of the bill passed by the Legislature to legalize the Columbian celebration expenditures. Alderman A. J. Heaney, one of the indicted officials, said:

celebration expenditures. Alderman A. J. Heaney, one of the indicted officials, said:

"I have no opinion. The newspapers have taken all of my opinions, and I haven't any more."

County Auditor Keller, one of the indicted, referred the reporter to his attorneys, Messrs. Morse and Whitehouse. "My lawyers wil do all the talking." he said, but they did very little. Mr. Morse "really had paid but little attention to the matter." He didn't know that a bill had been passed or vetoed.

City Auditor Weber, also indicted, talked more freely. He said: "I think the Governor's action was very discourteous. He should have given the other side a hearing. It looks very much as if Mr. William J. Gaynor (attorney for the taxpayers in the civil suit brought to recover a portion of the expenditures had a hand in drawing up the veto. As far as I am concerned I am perfectly innocent, as I was away at the bed-side of a sick son when the bills were audited. We did not know nor did the Mayor know that the action of the Council in appropriating money for the celebration was illegal, If I had been Mayor Boody. I never would have allowed the bill to legalize the expenditures to go to Albany, I don't think, however, that the Governor's veto amounts to much. It's small potatoes."

l'athetic Stories of Suffering Among Patient Women and Children.

Responses to the appeal of " The Evening World " for aid for the temporarily distress among the city's workers are generous and open-hearted. They come in money, provisions, bundles of clothing and offers of services in various directions where the kindly disposed writers are thomselves too poor to afford money contributions. The second day's announcement is that $82.26 was revesterday's issue, bringing the Temporary

The most gratifying letters received were tions, for the Fund was never intended to be gigantic affair, and the smallest contribution from the scanty store of some man or coman who might some time, through unforeseen calamity, be in sore need of assist ance, shows how the necessity for relief fund is appreciated.
